College & Career Ready

Part of unlocking potential is helping your child to be college and career ready. To foster conversations about potential colleges and careers, our counselors Mr. King and Ms. Sowell organized College Week this Monday through Friday. During College Week, staff and students were encouraged to wear their favorite college shirts and/or hats. Also, teachers were asked to discuss college and career questions during their morning meetings, and invite students to attend the MNPS College & Career Expo.

Obtaining a college degree can have a substantial impact on how much you earn over your lifetime. According to US News & World Report, "Those holding bachelor's degrees earn about $2.27 million over their lifetime, while those with master's, doctoral, and professional degrees earn $2.67 million, $3.25 million, and $3.65 million, respectively." Those who only earn a high school diploma earn about 1.3 million over their lifetime. At Marshall, we are committed to helping students explore college and career options as well helping them develop the skills to be successful beyond high school.
